2). HAJJ AND UMRAH CHARTER Flights

VFLYAIR charter operations will accommodate the dedicated purpose for religious travels that is not mixed with holiday travels, the client can charter the whole airplane for umrah or hajj and start their religious trip from the time the passengers are onboard the airplane.

Unlike certain major airlines that rely mainly on their scheduled flights to and from Jeddah to air-lift the pilgrims from their source countries and, therefore, cause major inconveniences to the passengers, VFLYAIR organizes and executes special Umrah and Hajj air-lifting operations for each of its clients and air-lifts the pilgrims directly from the designated gateways in the source country to Jeddah or Medina and returns them in accordance with the flight slots that it secures from the Saudi Arabia GACA. This has been possible through close collaboration with the national air-carriers that would allow VFLYAIR to fly under their call-sign.

The background of the slide features four vflyair aircraft in flight, arranged in a descending staircase pattern from top-left to bottom-right. The aircraft are white with a red and white stylized 'V' logo on the tail and 'vflyair' written on the fuselage. The background transitions from a clear blue sky at the top to a bright yellow and orange glow at the bottom, suggesting a sunset or sunrise. Large, semi-transparent white arrows point downwards from the top-left towards the bottom-right, following the path of the aircraft.

5. AIRCRAFT LEASING

(DRY, WET, ACMI, DAMP LEASE)

DRY LEASE

A dry lease is a lease agreement whereby an aircraft financing company or entity (Hereby referred to as a lessor), provides an aircraft without flight crew, ground staff, fuel, maintenance, etc. A dry lease requires the lessee to put the aircraft on its own air operator's certificate (AOC) and provide air registration. VFLYAIR supports the lessee, by providing the aircraft on a sub-lease to the new startup airline, if they are looking for a Dry Lease option.

WET LEASE

Begin with the wet lease. When an airline wet leases an aircraft, the leasing company provides everything – the aircraft itself, pilots, and cabin crew. Furthermore, the leasing company also takes care of maintenance and insurance. Essentially, you can have 0 aircraft that you own as a company and still run an airline. VFLYAIR with its network, and connections, supports new startup airlines or regular charter airlines, that are looking for a minimum period to run their airline business, before having their aircraft on a Dry Lease or purchasing the aircraft units.

ACMI

ACMI is a common term in aviation that stands for Aircraft, Crew, Maintenance, and Insurance services that are offered to a client to effectively outsource the key functions of aircraft operations to a third party. ACMI operations are quite common in business aircraft as well as the commercial and cargo aviation world. VFLYAIR, with its partner airlines worldwide, provides different types of cargo & passenger aircraft units under the ACMI for its clients.

What is ACMI Leasing also known as wet or damp leasing, ACMI leasing is an agreement between two airlines, where the lessor agrees to provide an aircraft, crew, maintenance, and insurance (ACMI) to the lessee – in return for payment on the number of block hours operated.

A Damp Lease is a type of lease that falls somewhere between a wet lease and a dry lease. The lessor provides the aircraft and some of the crew, usually, the cockpit crew, and the lessee provides the rest of the crew, maintenance, and insurance. VFLYAIR supports the lessee, by providing the aircraft on a Damp-lease to the new startup airline or an airline that has its crew, particularly cabin crew available if they are looking for a Damp Lease option.
